

Invitation to the Nordic eye meeting in Stavanger, Norway 6-8th of September 2012

Dear colleagues!

On behalf of the Norwegian Society of Veterinary Ophthalmology (NSVO) it is a pleasure to invite you to the Nordic Eye Meeting 2012.

This year's topics will be "Surgery of the adnexa in dogs and cats" and "Anesthesia for ocular surgery made practical". The lecturers will be Christine Heinrich and Karen Walsh, respectively. Both are European diplomates in their respective fields and are experienced and popular lecturers.

The meeting will be held at The Radisson Blu Atlantic Hotel in Stavanger, a cozy town in the south-western part of Norway. The hotel is centrally located in the heart of the town, in walking distance to the town's many attractions. Stavanger is an easily accessible destination with 47 direct flights to Stavanger airport Sola, and ferries Hirtshals-Stavanger.

Stavanger is called the "Oil capital of Norway" and has a lot to offer when it comes to museums, shopping, dining out and not least it is surrounded by a fantastic nature with fjords, wild mountains and long sandy beaches. This spectacular nature will be the backdrop for the social program held in connection with the meeting which includes a cruise on the impressive Lysefjord followed by dinner and social activities on the shoreline Thursday afternoon. Friday afternoon there will be dinner at "Flor og Fjære" located on an island with an impressive botanical garden. Just in case it might be wise to bring warm and waterproof clothes for the outdoor activities but hopefully it will not be needed.

Due to reservations of hotel rooms and social activities the registration dead line is the 1st of July.

Registration form, program and other relevant information can be found at: www.kulturkompaniet.no/nsvo

Sign up today!!!

We are looking forward to see you in Stavanger.

On behalf of NSVO,
Ernst-Otto Ropstad
